Touchscreen Parking Pay Stations Arriving To Downtown Scranton

SCRANTON, PA - Street parking in the Electric City is getting brighter. Today commences the rollout of digital on-street parking pay stations which will replace traditional meters downtown.

Each street will feature new pay stations conveniently placed along each block. After parking, visitors can go to any pay station, enter their license plate information, and pay for their selected time.

This updated system will use license plate technology, allowing visitors the flexibility to park in all designated areas around the city with the convenience of multiple payment method options, including quarters, credit and debit cards, and through a mobile app. Simply remember: park, plate, pay.

The installation is starting with the streets surrounding Courthouse Square and will continue throughout the downtown district over the next two months. The new pay stations will replace all current traditional meters downtown and feature a full-color touch screen, providing a superior user interface. These screens will also enable the city to disseminate messages and information.
